

The Body in Psychotherapy

Integrating Mind, Emotions and the Body

Radix Somatic Psychotherapy: A Wholistic Approach

A five-day intensive workshop

Dates

May 2 – May 6
2019

Time

9am – 5pm daily

Gestalt Centre

333 Heidelberg Rd
Northcote, Victoria

This five-day intensive workshop will blend didactic and experiential learning. Participants will have the opportunity to learn the basic concepts underpinning mind-body therapeutic work, and experientially learn how the application of these concepts can deepen their own embodiment and that of their clients. On the final day there will be supervised practice in the application of the concepts presented.

This workshop is the first in a series of training modules. The modules can be taken by themselves, or can lead to certification as a Radix Practitioner. For the Certification Program, the modular structure of the training gives flexibility as to when a trainee enters the program, begins their individual experiential work, and begins working with clients of their own. If you are potentially interested in the Certification Program, you will have the opportunity to discuss the program with the training staff at the workshop.

About Radix

Radix Somatic Psychotherapy is a wholistic and comprehensive approach.

Differing from other psychotherapies that are somatically informed, Radix Psychotherapy has the body at its central focus and understands the psychological constitution of the person from the somatic. This process work, with the emphasis on somatically unfolding rather than applying a method approach, supports the healing and expression of the client within the therapeutic relationship.

Radix has its history in the work of Psychiatrist Dr Wilhelm Reich who developed body based psychotherapy back in the early 1900's foreshadowing a contemporary understanding of the centrality of limbic and autonomic regulatory processes in affective and mental life (Sletvoid 2014). Radix has grown and developed out of this work over the last 50 years, providing a subtle, highly attuned and comprehensive process oriented work.

Training workshops are offered by the faculty of The Radix Institute in the USA and Europe, and The Radix Training Centre in Australia.
